

Scaredy Cat Retro Vintage Halloween Cat

There are two choices for the head. Both have tabs on them to attach to the body. You could also cut off the tab and attach it directly to the body. The head on the lower right on the sheet is an adaptation of a traditional vintage "Scaredy Cat." The hat goes with that head. I left it detached so you could decide if you want it at a jaunty angle.

STEP 1: Print the page with the pieces of the cat on heavy cardstock.

STEP 2: Cut out all pieces. If you want to use black cardstock, you can now trace the pieces onto your black cardstock using a white pencil or marker.

STEP 3: If you are using the white cardstock only, paint the pieces black.

STEP 4: Paint a thin border around all pieces except for the tab on the head. Red, orange, and hot pink look best, in my opinion, but you do you. You can paint the claws to make them show up better.

STEP 5: Paint the face. Add whiskers with white paint or a white marker. I have included a couple pictures for you to use as inspiration.

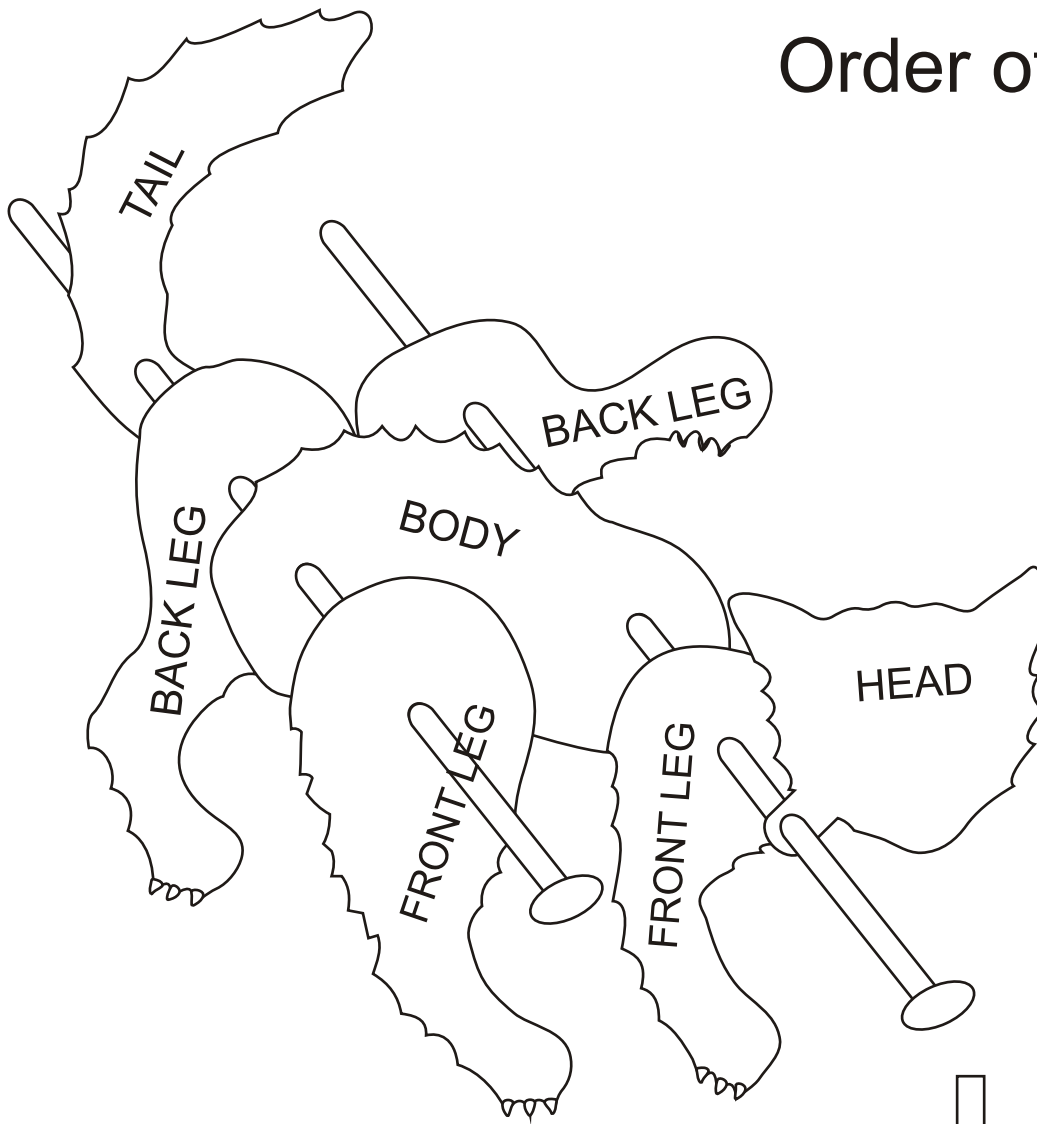

STEP 6: Assembly - Make the holes. If you have a hole punch that will work on cardstock, use that. Otherwise, find a sharp tool like an awl. You can even start a hole with a nail and enlarge it by gently pushing a screwdriver through the hold and twisting it. .

Using round head paper fasteners, assemble the cat parts according to the diagram on the next page. The round head should end up on the front of the cat, with the prongs on the back. You can paint the round head black if you wish.

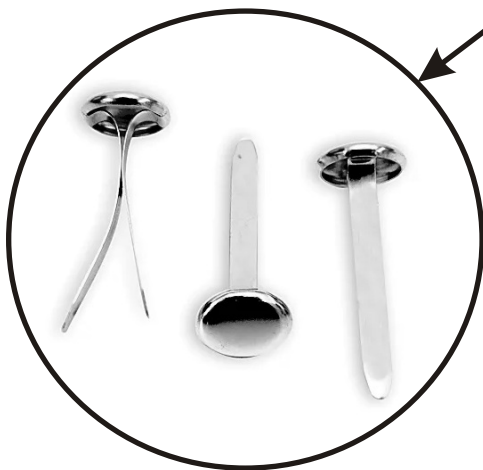

DISPLAY: If you are going to hang your cat, you can make a hole at the top of the back, or tape a loop of string on the back of the back.
